

SONG,

To the Tune of "Bow Wow."

I've travelled far to get a seat,
Search'd every Burgh and town Sir,
How cruel thus to be repulsed,
A man of my renown Sir,
At length with disappointment fretted,
To Cork I homeward jaunted,
When lo the unexpected sound,
Oh ! GERRARD you are wanted.

Tis thus you see the golden rule,
That merit ne'er at home is known,
In me is quite reversed.
The envious elves of Cork's dear town,
At last discern, applaud and praise;
Whilst Sam and Jones with face undanted,
Cry out 'tis him 'tis him alone,
'Tis GERRARD that is wanted.

In Senate house I've done what sure
Astonished half the nation,
Van's secrets coaxed out with a lure,
Then blabbed them in my station,
Ambitious thus myself to raise,
Van's confidence supplanted,
From coughing rude I'm glad to fly,
Where GERRARD he is wanted.

Great Wellington in fashion's round,
Has met with sad disaster,
Alas great fool to Gerrard come,
He sets at nought the cafter,
To pay or fight in all alike,
His talents ne'er are vaunted,
But honor, courage, never yet
In Wellington were wanted

Then Citizens you briefly see,
I am the man you look for,
In Senate and in war alike,
A Nestor and a Hector,
Come on my lads the cash I have,
Your pockets ne'er shall lack it,
The contract's o'er, the Bills are drawn,
Whilst Daddy Dan will back it.
